Part 1

Prompt

Prompt: Are these reviews positive or negative?

Output

Output:
The dataset contains both positive and negative reviews, along with some neutral and mixed reviews.

I analyzed all 110 product reviews in your `product-reviews.csv` file.

Overall sentiment analysis

64%

Positive sentiment score distribution

Positive: 70

Negative: 14

Neutral: 26

Automated preliminary sentiment classification based on text polarity. Sarcasm and mixed opinions may require manual review.

Examples

Positive reviews

- R006: "Perfect for my commute. Clear calls, solid battery."
- R017: "Absolutely bombproof...with zero damage."
- R090: "Gorgeous kettle, quick boil, quiet. No complaints at all."

Negative reviews

- R003: "Left earbud stopped charging after two weeks."
- R048: "Leaks from the bottom. Dangerous near an electrical outlet."
- R100: "Stopped working entirely after a month. Waste of money."

Neutral or mixed reviews

- R007: "decent bag for the money, not for serious backpacking tho"
- R029: "Fine for podcasts. Wouldn't use them for music."
- R104: "It boils water. It's a kettle."

Conclusion

The dataset leans positive overall, but there are substantial neutral and negative opinions.

For a sentiment analysis project, I would recommend using three classifications:

1. Positive – Customers express satisfaction.
2. Negative – Customers express dissatisfaction.
3. Neutral – Customers ask questions, state facts, or provide no clear opinion.

This dataset would be useful for building or testing a machine-learning sentiment classification model.

Notes

The model considered every review to create a line graph and had three categories: positive, negative, mixed/neutral. It gave some examples of each but did not give a comprehensive list of the good bad and neutral/mixed ones.

Part 2

Prompt 1

Prompt

Techniques: Define the categories, few-shot
Prompt v1:
Label each of these reviews into one of the following categories: positive, negative, neutral, mixed, sarcastic, spam, fake, wrong product, irrelevant. Here are some examples:

Example 1:
Review: R016,Trailmark Hiking Backpack,"Ordered for my husband. He says it's ""fine."""
Label: Neutral
Example 2:
Review: R031,Lumen Smart Bulbs (4-Pack),App crashes constantly. Half the time the bulbs won't respond.
Label: Negative
Example 3:
Review: R058,Cozy Knit Throw Blanket,Shed everywhere. My couch is covered in fuzz.
Label: Irrelevant
Example 4:
Review: R086,Lumen Smart Bulbs (4-Pack),"Works perfectly with Alexa. Voice control is a game changer for my mom, who has limited mobility."
Label: Positive

Prompt 2

Prompt

Techniques: Define the categories, few shot, output format, constraints
Prompt v2:
Label each of these reviews into one of the following categories: positive, negative, neutral, mixed, sarcastic, spam, fake, wrong product, irrelevant. Respond with a table of three columns, first column is the review # and second column is the label. The third column will be bullet points on what triggered the label selection. If a review has an unclear label, leave the second column blank and in the third column have a one-sentence explanation as to why it didn't fit in the current labels. Here are some examples:

Example 1:
Review: R016,Trailmark Hiking Backpack,"Ordered for my husband. He says it's ""fine."""
Label: Neutral
Bullet Points: "Fine"
Example 2:
Review: R031,Lumen Smart Bulbs (4-Pack),App crashes constantly. Half the time the bulbs won't respond.
Label: Negative
Bullet Points: Fine, no response, app crashes
Example 3:
Review: R058,Cozy Knit Throw Blanket,Shed everywhere. My couch is covered in fuzz.

Label: Irrelevant
Bullet Points: Fine, couch covered in fuzz
Example 4:
Review: R086,Lumen Smart Bulbs (4-Pack),"Works perfectly with Alexa. Voice control is a game changer for my mom, who has limited mobility."
Label: Positive
Bullet Points: Game changer, perfect

Output

Output:
The reviews are classified using the nine requested categories. Reviews expressing both positive and negative opinions are labeled mixed, while questions without an actual product evaluation are left blank.

Review #	Label	Triggering bullet points / Explanation
R001	Negative	• Chemical smell • Took a week to air out

R108	Sarcastic	• Failed after three days • Frequent disconnections • Mocking "impressive engineering"
R109	Negative	• Cheap-feeling charging case • Lid snapped off
R110	Negative	• Not as bright as advertised • Fails brightness claim

Classification notes:

- Blank labels: R012, R067, R087, and R101 are questions rather than actual reviews.
- Sarcastic: R022, R024, R030, R066, R068, R078, R080, R085, R098, and R108 use irony or exaggerated praise to communicate dissatisfaction.
- Mixed: Reviews contain both positive and negative product feedback.
- Wrong product: R019 describes receiving a different size than ordered.
- Spam/Fake: No reviews contained sufficiently clear evidence to justify either label.

Prompt 3

Prompt

Techniques: Define the categories, few shot, output format, constraints, role prompting
Prompt v3:
You are a business analyst who is analyzing customer feedback for a company's product. Label each of these reviews into one of the following categories: positive, negative, neutral, mixed, sarcastic, spam, fake, wrong product, irrelevant. Respond with a table of three columns, first column is the review # and second column is the label. The third column will be bullet points on what triggered the label selection. There should be a row for every review in the dataset where you give your label and bullet points. If a review has an unclear label, leave the second column blank and in the third column have a one-sentence explanation as to why it didn't fit in the current labels. Here are some examples:

Example 1:
Review: R016,Trailmark Hiking Backpack,"Ordered for my husband. He says it's ""fine."""
Label: Neutral
Bullet Points: "Fine"
Example 2:
Review: R031,Lumen Smart Bulbs (4-Pack),App crashes constantly. Half the time the bulbs won't respond.
Label: Negative
Bullet Points: Fine, no response, app crashes
Example 3:
Review: R058,Cozy Knit Throw Blanket,Shed everywhere. My couch is covered in fuzz.
Label: Irrelevant
Bullet Points: Fine, couch covered in fuzz
Example 4:
Review: R086,Lumen Smart Bulbs (4-Pack),"Works perfectly with Alexa. Voice control is a game changer for my mom, who has limited mobility."
Label: Positive
Bullet Points: Game changer, perfect

R108,sarcastic,"Earbuds disconnect after three days; engineering praise is sarcastic."
R109,negative,"Cheap-feeling charging case; lid snapped off within a month."
R110,negative,"Bulbs are dimmer than a standard 60W bulb."

Part 3

R001,Trailmark Hiking Backpack,Smells like chemicals out of the box. Took a week to air out.
My label: Negative, Smells like chemicals
Ai label: Negative, Chemical smell; took a week to air out
Comparison: I like chemical smell over smells like chemicals, but the week to air out may have been unnecessary information for the label.

R037,Lumen Smart Bulbs (4-Pack),They're lightbulbs. They light up.
My label: Sarcastic, They Light Up
Ai label: Neutral, Only states that bulbs produce light; no meaningful evaluation
Comparison: The AI didn't seem to capture the sarcasm in the message. I would put it more sarcastic over neutral.

R051,Hearth Electric Kettle,The cord is too short to reach anywhere useful.
My label: Mixed, Short Coord
Ai label: Negative, Power coord is too short and limits placement
Comparison: AI thought this was negative. I think it was mixed because the review did not speak to the quality of the product itself, only the cable which can be fixed with an extension.

R057,Hearth Electric Kettle,Took forever to get here and the box was wet. Haven't tried it yet.
My label: Negative, Wet Box, Long shipping
Ai label: neutral,"Slow delivery and wet packaging; kettle has not been tested."
Comparison: It's interesting that the AI decided neutral for this one but negative for the previous, even both did not test the product. I think the shipping problems is enough to determine that this review was negative.

R061,Trailmark Hiking Backpack,My son uses it for school and it's held up all year.
My label: Positive, Held up all year
Ai label: positive,"Backpack lasted through an entire school year."
Comparison: we both determined it was positive and found the qualifying text to be that it lasted for a full year.

R067,Trailmark Hiking Backpack,Is the laptop sleeve big enough for a 16-inch laptop?
My label: Question, Big enough for 16-inch?
Ai label: neutral,"Asks whether laptop sleeve fits a 16-inch laptop."
Comparison: AI labeled this as neutral when I think it should have noticed it was a question and not given it a label (since question was not one of my provided labels)

R068,Cozy Knit Throw Blanket,"Wonderful, it's itchy AND thin. Two for one."
My label: Sarcastic, itchy, thin
Ai label: sarcastic,"Blanket is itchy and thin; positive wording is sarcastic."
Comparison: We both recognized that this comment was sarcastic even though they used the word "wonderful"

R075,Cozy Knit Throw Blanket,Smaller than expected. Barely covers my lap. Very soft though.
My label: Mixed, Small, Soft
Ai label: mixed,"Smaller than expected but very soft."
Comparison: We both decided it was mixed due to it being small but also liking that it was soft

R084,Lumen Smart Bulbs (4-Pack),"Had a problem pairing, but support walked me through it in 10 minutes. Now everything works."
My label: Mixed, Problem Pairing, Works, Good support
Ai label: positive,"Support resolved pairing issue quickly; product now works."
Comparison: This one I wasn't sure if it would be positive or mixed. The fact that they started the review by talking about the pairing issue led me to weight it more towards mixed.

R098,Lumen Smart Bulbs (4-Pack),"Nothing says ""smart home"" like having to unplug the router to turn on my lights."
My label: Negative, unplug router for lights
Ai label: sarcastic,"Lights require router troubleshooting; smart-home praise is sarcastic."
Comparison: It was sarcastic but I believe it was more negative than anything. Chat chose that it was sarcastic.

Final Analysis

In part 2, the final role-playing prompt broke the csv formatting at first and I had to ask it to continue a few times before getting what I needed. The model seemed to have variance in tricky reviews, rating some as mixed and other positive or neutral even if they had similar traits. The model labeled every review even though I told it to ignore it if the review didn't fit one of the given ones. As such, I found questions being labeled as neutral.

I think the biggest technique that was added was output format. This let me concisely control how to handle the data, what answers I was looking for, and the output format that I was expecting.
